Military Transition Program

Transition to Our Team

You have leadership skills, determination, and focus—hallmarks of what has made The MIL Corporation (MIL) the premier provider of innovative support to the federal government for over 40 years. We invite you to apply the valuable skills you have acquired through your military service at MIL. Here, you can continue meeting our Nation's challenges by working on mission-critical activities in the areas of cyber, engineering, financial management, and information technology support.

Translating Your Skills

We offer job opportunities in a wide range of professions for all skill levels.

Cyber

Looking to continue to defend our Nation against adversaries? MIL develops, tests, and deploys the technologies and methodologies our customers need to protect critical data, infrastructure, and weapon and control systems.

Engineering

Want to support the Warfighter through rapid response solutions using cutting edge technology? Our engineering and Rapid Engineering and Prototyping Solutions (REPS) work spans research, design, test & evaluation, and logistics.

Financial Systems & Management

Have expertise in budgeting, auditing, or compliance? We consolidate massive volumes of data from globally dispersed locations for accelerated, comprehensive reporting and we travel to embassies and consulates around the world to train users on financial systems – all in an effort to keep crucial programs funded and operating efficiently.

Information Technology

Seeking to advance your technical skills in an environment where 100% uptime is the only option? MIL offers global 24x7x365 support to ensure systems and networks are running optimally across the enterprise.

Building a Bridge to Success

MIL, inspired by our Nation's men and women in uniform, honor and thank them for their time of service and seek to uplift and support them after their call of duty through our MIL BRIDGE program. MIL BRIDGE is a servicemember-focused group aimed at supporting and uplifting our current and former servicemembers. The group assists these employees in transitioning to civilian life, offering mentorship, career development, and community outreach. MIL is proud of our servicemembers, who contribute to enriching our workforce each day.

We're Dedicated to Our Servicemembers

MIL is a recipient of the Department of Defense's Above & Beyond Award, from the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR). This honor is given in limited numbers to employers who display patriotic support and cooperation to their employees. Specifically, MIL was commended for generous and clearly-defined military leave and employee support policies. Of special significance to us is that one of our own active reserve military staff members nominated us for this recognition.

Servicemembers Thrive at MIL

David St. John
Assistant Vice President, IT Sector
Specialist, U.S. Army

"During my time at MIL, I have come to learn that being ex-military is greatly valued in the government. My military experience allows me to connect with many of my government clients who are ex-military themselves. My experience with supervisors who I share a common background has quickly translated into mutual respect and their valuing my input greatly."

Jerome Roubieu
Assistant Vice President, Cyber Sector
U.S. Navy

"The MIL Corporation was a fantastic choice to transition to after leaving Active Duty. There are many veterans and senior government officials employed in the company who understand and appreciate what our experience brings to the table. I was most impressed with the opportunity for growth. If you are an eager professional with desires for reaching the next level, MIL is there to support you 100%."

Rebecca Helms
P&M, Project Manager
U.S. Air Force

"As an NCO in the military, I wore many hats and shouldered various responsibilities. Every piece of my training, whether it be technical, tactical, or for leadership has transferred to every skill I need in the civilian world and has given me the ability to overcome every challenge! I appreciate the person the military helped me become – civilian companies reap the benefits of our intrinsic sense of dedication, resilience, and ability to maintain perspective during stressful situations."

Joel Melville
Vice President of Administration
U.S. Army Corporal

"My experience in the Army taught me a lot about myself and a lot about leadership. Whether you are leading consultants on an email migration or soldiers in a field exercise, the basics are always the same. MIL respects and values the experience that the military service brings to our workplace. Much like the military, MIL is always looking for great talent and wants to cultivate the very best from each employee, veteran or not."
